

A brief statement about myself

I'm Belen, and I'm a product, UX, UI and graphic designer and front-end developer. For 9 years now, involved in the entire life process of an interface. Product definition - Prototype - Design - Layout.

I'm looking forward to join a team that needs my help to materialize their ideas. I'm the kind of person that gets it and feels it, that can imagine and materialize stuff, not just apps but also everyday stuff like organizing file systems or how it will be the best way to work, I think I have that thing. Although I tend to have lots of questions I'm a good listener and developed with time and experience that empathy is the key to everything you want to pursue. I am very passionate, my heart speaks a lot I have to say. I am a great bridge between users and developers. I don't want just a full time job, I'm looking into helping a project and put my heart on it.

I see my work and smile because sometimes is a satisfaction that I could materialize an idea or just a thought, what I like is that I tend to think in every path, and is very rewarding when I'm building to keep improving it on the go. I wouldn't say that I don't like something, because every single thing (no matter if it's wrong or not) will lead you to something better, of course I could be better that's not the point, the thing is that if you keep trying you evolve.
